

THE UNIVERSITY

OF HONG KONG

Department of Mathematics

Numerical Mathematics and Applied Analysis Group Seminar (NMAA)

A Tutorial to Financial Mathematics

Dr. LI Xun

Department of Mathematics
National University of Singapore

on Monday, December 12, 2005 at 10:30a.m. in Room 517, Meng Wah Complex

Abstract

This tutorial is to introduce some basic concepts in financial mathematics to students who are interested in this field. These topics include forward contracts, options, arbitrage opportunities and risk averse. Examples will provide students with some insights of financial markets and financial derivatives.

All first-year students are welcome
