Abstract

This talk aims at undergraduate and graduate students who are interested in pursuing their careers in the financial area. I shall share my view as a financial practitioner with the audiences. How is the current prospect of a financial practitioner? What kind of qualifications (such as CFA, CFP... etc.) one can prepare for? What kind of background knowledge one is needed? What is the nature of the job in practice? A senior consultant in financial planning is also invited to share his views.

All are welcome
